act_report

The account on Twitter named WeRateDog has the most particular rating system for dogs, it takes images of dogs from followers and rates the on a scale of 10 but most of the time the numerator is greater than the denominator.

We used those tweets published by WeRateDogs to answer some questions about the popularity of dog races, the first question is what are the most popular dog races represented by the number of the occurrence of each race? Second one What is the race that got the most retweets? The last question is What is the race that got the most favorites on the tweets?
1. what are the most popular dog races represented by the number of the occurrence of each race?

When we calculate the number of occurrences of each race on the tweets detected by the AI we found that the Golden retriever is the most popular dog breath this is shown by the visualization too.
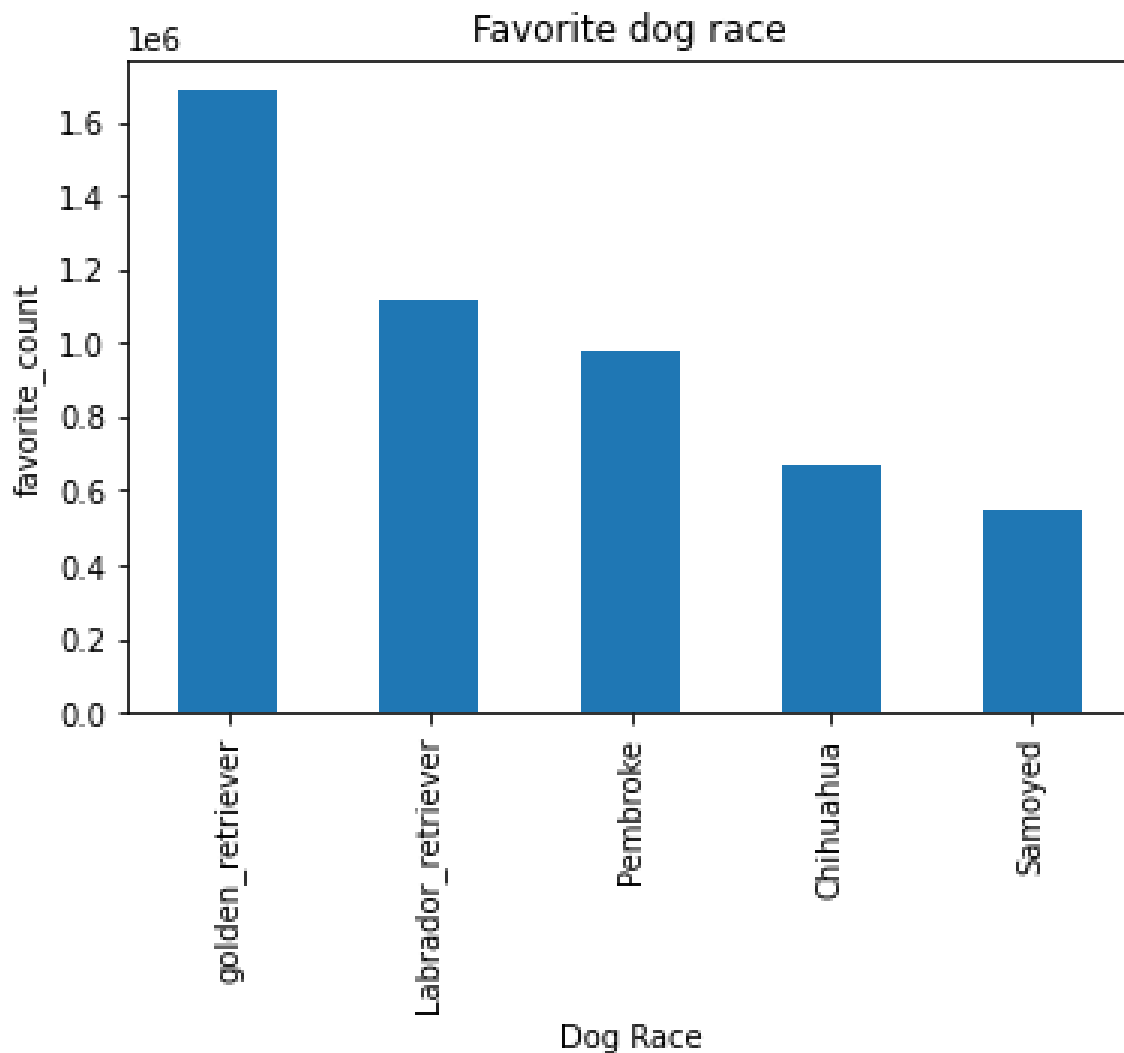

Popular dog race

2. What is the race that got the most retweets?

The data shows that the dog race that got the most retweets is the golden retriever too and in the second place we found Labrador retriever as shown on the visualization under:

most retweeted dog race

3. What is the race that got the most favorites on the tweets?

Data show the same result as the two questions above :

Favorite dog race

Conclusion :

We can assume the golden retriever is considered the most friendly and popular dog breath, and people find it a cute dog, they are more likely if they own a dog to take this race or the labrador as they are similar in a lot of ways.